1935 Senior Week Activities Will Be Held June 8 to 10

Speaker at Commencement Exercises Will Be Silas Strawn

SHERMAN'S BAND IS TO PLAY FOR BALL

Scheduled Program Is To Include Athletic and Social Events

The 1935 senior week activities will open Saturday, June 8 at 10 a. m. with the class day exercises and continue through Monday June 10, terminating with the senior ball in McCullough gymnasium Monday night.

Speakers for the class of 1935 are: poem, Doris G. Anderson; history, Elizabeth B. Bailey and Arnold R. LaForce; tree dedication, Walter E. Boehm; class will, Rosamond Allen and William A. Hunter; oration, Francis J. Donahue; prophecy, Patricia Littlefield and Otto W. Prochazka. The address of welcome to alumni and guests will be delivered by Philip H. Mathewson, president of the men's senior class, who will also introduce the speakers.

At the exercises Dean Burt A. Hazeltine will announce the class honors. After this the traditional peace-pipe smoking will take place around the newly planted tree.

Katharine L. Kelley and Henry F. MacLean have been chosen junior marshals and will lead the procession of seniors to the various events.

Saturday morning, at 1 o'clock, a barbecue will be held on lower campus, near the gymnasium. This is an innovation in the usual program and will be in the form of a luncheon open to alumni, seniors, undergraduates and all visitors. After the meal, there will be a field follies instead of the usual intercollegiate baseball game. The committee in charge consists of Dr. Stewart Ross '20 of Rutland, Coach Ar-

Two presentations of the play were given during junior week under Prof. V. Spencer Goodreds' direction.

Wetherell and Lawrence Debating Prizes Awarded

John F. Darrow '37 and Charles A. Deedman '36 were awarded the Wetherell debating prizes in chapel yesterday. The first, second, and third Lawrence awards, also presented at this time, were won by Darrow, Deedman, and Ralph W. Pickard.

The Wetherell foundation for the encouragement of debating was begun in 1922 as a memorial to Prof. Archibald D. Wetherell. The income of the $1100 fund is awarded annually in prizes to the two men showing the greatest interest and proficiency.

The Edwin Winship Lawrence awards were established in memory of George Edwin Lawrence of the class of 1867. Prizes of $25, $15, and $10 are given each year to three students.

Last Saxonian To Be Ready Friday

Contribution of Winners in Poetry Contest Are to Be Published in This Issue

The annual poetry issue of the Saxonian will be given out Friday under the supervision of the newly elected board, with Elizabeth Trask '36, editor in charge.

This number contains the three prize-award poems by Mary L. Taylor '37, first place, Elizabeth W. Higgins '35, second, and Velma S. Sutliffe '36, third. In addition, there are the honorable mention poems, several stories and essays, and a drawing of Walt Whitman, noted American poet, by Charles J. Harvi '37.

The table of contents also includes stories by Robert W. Leonard '37 and Miss Sutliffe, which were submitted for the short story contest during the winter. These are "Escape from the Fog" and "Blue-Eyed People". Essays published in the issue are, "Menu with Music" by Leonard; "Man of Aragon" by Miss Higgins; "Interpretations of Democracy" by Patricia Littlefield '35; and "Montauk" by Miss Trask.

Carnival Chairmen Will Be Hutchinson And M. Scherholz

Creation of "Junior Body" For Mountain Club Proposed

REORGANIZATION TO BE VOTED ON FRIDAY

Members of New Board to Be Selected From Try-Outs

Mountain club plans for the coming year have been announced by new president and governing board. Robert L. Hutchinson '37 and Margaret W. Scherholz '37, have been elected to be chairman and associate chairman, respectively, of the third annual Winter Carnival to be held here the third week in February, 1936.

The new carnival heads were elected by the governing board of the club from a list of candidates who showed ability during the last carnival week. The various carnival committee chairmen will be chosen in the near future by the chairman and associate chairman, subject to approval by the governing board.

Dean Ross Presents Optima Award To Eleanore R. Cobb '36 in Chapel

Eleanore R. Cobb '36 was presented the Optima award by Dean Eleanor S. Ross in chapel this morning.

The $250 prize was established in 1928 by Mr. and Mrs. Roger S. Baldwin in memory of Henry R. Vail, a trustee of the college for many years. The recipient of the prize is the junior in the women's college who, in the judgment of the class, is most typical of Middlebury. Scholarship, character, and personality are considered in making the selection.

Mary A. Williams Chosen Mortar Board President

Mary A. Williams '36 has been elected president of Mortar Board for the coming year. Other officers are Eleanore R. Cobb '36, vice-president; Barbara T. Wishart '36, secretary; Louise E. Hubbard '36, treasurer; and Marion A. Hook '36, editor.

Helen C. Aronson '36 will be Mortar Board chairman of the point system.

The retiring officers of Mortar Board are E. Dorothy Canfield '35, president; Avis E. Fischer '35, vice-president; Frances M. Chaffee '35, secretary; Faith Arnold '35, treasurer; and Elizabeth W. Higgins '35, editor.

This organization is a national senior honorary society, election to which is based on service to the college, leadership, and scholarship.

Freshmen Men To Speak In Contest

Parker Prize Contest Will Be Held Tomorrow Night In Mead Memorial Chapel

The annual prize speaking contest for freshmen men will be held tomorrow night in Mead chapel at 8 o'clock.

The entries and their subjects are as follows: Herman N. Benner, "The Voice of Lincoln"; Emory A. Hebard, "The American Menace"; Jack C. Keir, "Let Us Plan"; and James A. Miner, "It Always Has Stopped Raining".

A prize of thirty dollars will be awarded to the winner of first place, and one of twenty dollars to the winner of second place. These prizes are the result of a fund established as a gift of Daniel Parker in 1807, and of Prof. Frederick Hall in 1820.

Judges for the competition will be Coach Arthur M. Brown, Prof. Phelps N. Swett, and Mr. Edgar J. Wiley. Prof. V. Spencer Goodreds is in charge of the contest.

Those awarded prizes last year were Anthony J. Penele, first, John F. Darrow, second, and Kenneth W. MacFadyen, third.

Ralph H. Meacham Selected President Of Undergraduates

Other Nominees Presented Are Steele, Startup And Hoxie

MEETING CALLED IN CHAPEL LAST NIGHT

Student Council's Action in Withholding Names Is Questioned

Ralph H. Meacham '36 was elected president of the men's undergraduate association at a meeting held last evening in Mead chapel.

He was chosen on the first ballot over the other candidates, Elwood A. Hoxie '36, and Charles H. Startup '36. The name of Jack Steele '36 was withdrawn at his request before the voting began.

Before the balloting the objection was raised that the election was entirely unconstitutional. Contrary to the provisions of the constitution, the list of nominees had not been published before the election, thus preventing those who wished to from adding to the list.

Walter E. Boehm '35, chairman of the meeting, explained that this secrecy had been decided on by the student council to prevent combines before the election. It was then pointed out from the floor that the student council had no power to set aside the provisions of the constitution.

A motion to adjourn the meeting until Friday was voted down and the floor was opened to nominations. Startup was added to the list of candidates on assent of more than twenty-five per cent of the members present.

Meacham has been awarded letters in baseball, cross country and winter sports, and was captain of the cross-country team last season. He is president of the interfraternity council, a member of Waubanakee, Blue Key, and "M" club. He is Alpha Sigma Phi.

Student Union Will Elect Chief Justice

Leach, Mayo and Spaulding Nominees for New Office Of Women's Organization

The chief justice of the women's Student Union will be elected Wednesday, May 29, in Recitation hall. Ballots may be cast from 4 to 5:45 p. m. and from 6:45 to 8 p. m.

Candidates for this office are Margaret R. Leach '36, Anna Mayo '36, and Melba A. Spaulding '36. This is a new position created by the revised constitution of the Student Union. The chief justice will be at the head of the judiciary council which will enforce all regulations passed by the Student Union and will deal with all matters of discipline which fall under the jurisdiction of the organization. Changes in regulations will be made by the legislative council of the association.

Nominees have also been announced for social committee representatives from the various classes. They are as follows: Harmony Buell '36, Eleanore R. Cobb '36, Velma S. Sutliffe '36, Carol Bloom '37, Muriel K. Jones '37, Jean E. Porter '37, Margaret Leslie '38, Jennie-Belle Perry '38, and Katherine C. Whittier '38.

Helen M. Kuechel '37 has been chosen to head the big and little sister project in the women's college for next year.

M. Christine Conley '36 is executive head of the Student Union.

COMPREHENSIVES

The college catalog states: "The purpose of the comprehensive examination requirement is to put the emphasis on the assimilation of knowledge and on the acquisition of a broad and deep comprehension of the student's major subject, both in the various phases of the subject itself and also in its relation to other branches of knowledge." This aim seems quite simple, that each student, as a requirement for graduation, be able to correlate the details assimilated in a number of courses in his major into a unified whole and relate this branch of knowledge to the entire scope of his intellectual experience. Such an educational theory is exceedingly worthy, but it needs some elaboration in order to adapt it to practical application.

It is obviously easy to find minor flaws in the means taken to apply any new and growing plan. This is not our intention. It is rather to point out the lack of a clear and unified plan of application at Middlebury which is consistent with the ideals of the comprehensive theory. The theory has now passed through a three year experimentation period and next year, according to plans, the rule will become effective which excludes those who fail from graduation, without any opportunity for a make-up until the following May. It is high time that something beyond a smattering of independent action during the last part of the senior year be done.

The comprehensive theory has been applied to the surface of college intellectual experience in much the same way that ancient medics applied leeches to the skin of an ailing patient. If the comprehensive plan is to cure some of the ills of our educational system or, at least, compensate for some shortcomings in the purely academic idea, it must be encouraged to grow organically as an integral part of the whole of college training. That has not been accomplished at Middlebury, and until it has, the application of the comprehensive theory can scarcely be called successful.

The action taken by several departments in the written examinations given this week, although it was undoubtedly justifiable and necessary in the light of practical considerations, seems to be a direct admission of failure in applying the comprehensive plan. The written comprehensives given in a number of departments, those of the economics, history, and chemistry departments have especially come to our attention, were separated into divisions, with each division covering a specific course in the department without any apparent attempt to correlate the work in all courses or relate it to other subjects. To the best of our knowledge, the exams did not differ radically from a group of final course examinations given in each subject covered by the department. Such actions are not compatible with the theory of comprehensive examinations as we understand it.

A plan for conducting special classes for majors during the second semester in preparation for the examinations was tried this year by several departments, especially those in literature and language. The idea is exceedingly praiseworthy but it has several practical handicaps. It places an unjust amount of work on the seniors, the training is inadequate, and it still has the aspect of external application. This plan might be extended so that each department would offer a compulsory senior course for majors to aid in cultivating the comprehensive method of thinking and to give practical help in correlating work in the other courses.

The political science department has tried a plan of giving practice comprehensives during the junior and senior years which is worthy of the consideration of other departments.

The comprehensive theory as applied at Middlebury has placed almost complete responsibility on the shoulders of the students. Experience seems to indicate that the students are unable and unwilling to accept that responsibility, and many professors have not attempted to hold them to it. Unless individual instructors are willing to share the responsibility by including some comprehensive elements in individual courses and by giving encouragement and aid in formulating comprehensive ideas, the theory cannot adequately be applied.

Strube in the London Daily Express

CONTEMPO
—by Otto W. Prochazka, Jr.

President Roosevelt's veto of the Patman bonus bill is now a certainty. His determined stand on the inflationary measure is causing the congressmen many a troubled hour. A large group of the senators and representatives owe their presence in Washington to the Roosevelt landslide that carried them along; with this in the back of their heads, they are evidently unable to decide whether or not to succumb to the powerful Legion lobby and to the deluge of pro-bonus letters and telegrams, many of them Coughlin-inspired. The fight that is certain to follow the presidential veto will be a hard one, and at the present it is impossible to tell whether or not the veto will be over-ridden. Right now it is quite possible that some compromise measure may be resorted to.

It would be a good thing for everybody concerned if the bonus could be taken out of politics for good. If the Patman bill were passed, at least that much would be accomplished.

The important arguments against the bonus come not from the fearful opponents of inflation, but from those who feel that the money could be better used. Not all of the veterans need the money; there are other people who could benefit more by the same sum. Then too, there is the objection that the payment of the bonus would create within the veteran ranks a psychology of a privileged class. This latter argument immediately dissolves into nothingness when the veterans are considered in a humanitarian light; anyone who had to sever himself from all that was part of him, go through the misery of war, and then return to find that things had moved on and that he is no longer a part of the scheme of things is entitled to anything that we can give him. But the men who actually fought make up a small part of the bonus men.

The good secretary Ickes provided unusual amusement for the congressmen by mislaying a bill that congress had already passed. He then came to the sacred halls in the deepest chagrin and asked that a duplicate be drawn up. The bill was a minor one, but the incident suggests limitless possibilities. A lot of things might be conveniently lost.

Immortal Einstein proved that temperament is not necessarily confined to opera prima donnas. Expected to speak on "Physics and Reality" after receiving the Franklin medal in Philadelphia, Einstein very demurely admitted that inspiration had not come his way and that he had nothing to offer about "Physics and Reality", or anything else. But he accepted the medal.

Jacob Epstein, American-born sculptor, brought a bit of color into the news by upbraiding the Royal Academy in London. "Blockheads", he called the Academy, and asked that his name be withdrawn from the organization. He called the gentlemen of the R. A. "a smug company of business men". It was all about his famous figures on the Medical Association building. The building is to become the Rhodesian mission. Someone wanted to remove the statues. Epstein said no. They will probably be removed.

POKING ABOUT

CANE RUSH

Everything started Saturday at 2 p. m. and all will be over Sunday. During that time, barring moratoria, the juniors will attempt to canenap fifty of those temptingly slim blue sticks which the senior women are tapping with such pride.

We don't blame them. The few we have held in those anguished moments following a successful raid have a pleasant smoothness, even though the once-white tops are beginning to look grimy. More than one cane has been forced to take a swim and has proved itself bathworthy, but the paint will probably peel sometime, perhaps while it's buried in the orchard.

The rules state that no cane may be taken while it is in contact with a senior's body and that seniors are expected to carry their canes. By now, however, most of them are being hitched on with old shoestrings or cords, which is a technical problem. We should say that carrying in the hand or on the arm is not the same as bearing on the person, like so many kangaroos, but even the best of ropes wears thin with constant friction.

Speaking as an artful dodger, we know that it takes a higher devotion to worm one's self under beds and nip ankles in the hope that the victim will drop her Gamaliel Painter. If she doesn't, you must submit to a thoroughly painful prodding and kneading with the very object of your predilection, until you produce yourself, dust-rabbits and all. There is nothing more commonplace than a cupboard—bulging as they all are with last winter's ski suit, golf bags, and muddy shoes, especially when you've seen it several times a day.

Designers of future women's dormitories should bear this in mind when they are architecting for new structures. The upper windows should let out conveniently near the drain pipes on the roof; windows themselves should have a sill wide enough to admit a cane. Interiors of bureaus should have roomy spaces between the drawers to accomodate your own and your room-mate's sticks and the underside of the edge of bathtubs should have adhesive tape provided in readiness.

These are just a few suggestions as to hiding-places. On the campus itself, there should be plenty of shrubs and hollow trees so that the seniors may be able to interpret intercepted notes correctly and spend pleasant half-hours after supper pacing back and forth ten yards to the right and four hands around, in the best gold bug manner.

A CORRECTION

A story in the last issue of the CAMPUS falsely credited the Vermont scholarships as a gift of ex-Governor Redfield Proctor. These scholarships are awarded by the trustees from regular college funds. Ex-Governor Proctor has been a generous friend of the college and is the donor of the Dutton fellowships which are awarded annually and provide for a year's graduate study abroad.

thur M. Brown, and a group of men from the "M" club. Plans for this include informal stunts and games between the classes. In the evening, the alumni will hold an informal dance in the gymnasium to which the undergraduates are invited. The Black Panthers will furnish music.

The baccalaureate sermon will be held Sunday morning in chapel, followed by the annual dinner for the class and faculty at Bread Loaf inn.

At 10 o'clock, Monday morning the graduation exercises will be held at the Congregational church. The Honorable Silas H. Strawn, lawyer and former head of the American bar association, will deliver the commencement address. This will be followed by the conferring of undergraduate degrees and the awarding of masters' and honorary degrees by President Paul D. Moody.

The customary alumni luncheon will take place Monday at 1 o'clock in McCullough gymnasium. That evening the senior ball will bring the activities to a close.

The committee in charge of the ball has secured the services of Clive Sherman and his internationally famous orchestra. The gym will be furnished with divans and easy chairs. Tickets will be priced at five dollars and may be secured from members of the committee.

CHAIRMEN FOR 1936 CARNIVAL ELECTED

club, assisted by the governing board, has drawn up plans for complete reorganization of the club, their recommendations and amendments to be voted on at a general meeting of the members Friday evening in Warner hemicycle at 6:45.

The new constitution provides for a new type of organization and government, similar to that used by the Bates outing club. An additional governing body, to be called the junior body until a suitable name can be decided upon has been created. A contest will be sponsored to find an appropriate name, the winner to receive free membership in the club for the next year.

The proposed constitution involves the following changes: The management of the club will rest with a governing board assisted by a junior body, whereas, in the old constitution, the governing board had sole power. The junior body will consist of twelve members from each of the three upper classes, six men and six women. The duties of the junior body will be to act as assistant to the present governing board, and to help supervise the carnival proceedure.

Professor Howard Co-Author Of Book

"Mental Health" Adopted For Class Use by Many Colleges and Universities

Prof. Frank E. Howard, head of the department of education and psychology at Middlebury, is the co-author of a textbook on psychology entitled "Mental Health; Its Principles and Practice". This book, published by the college department of Harper and brothers, is included in a Harper's bulletin as one of four outstanding textbooks in psychology.

A bulletin to the schools from the University of the State of New York says of it, "The point of view is wholesome and constructive and its scope is such that it constitutes an outstanding treatment of the subject."

Although the book appeared just at the close of the second semester, it has already been adapted for use by a large number of colleges, among them being, Cornell, Syracuse university, New York state teachers' college, Notre Dame, and Washington state college.

Professor Howard worked in collaboration with Frederick L. Patry, M. D., psychiatric physician in the New York state department of education and lecturer in neuro-psychiatry at the Albany medical college.

French Club Elections to Be Held Friday Evening

The French club will hold its last meeting of the year Friday at 8 p. m. in the Chateau. The officers for next year will be elected, and a program of take-offs of seniors will be given by the juniors.

At 6 o'clock Friday, the annual banquet for the seniors living in the Chateau will be held in the Chateau dining room. All residents of the Chateau and members of the French faculty will attend.

Rosamond Allen '35 will speak for the seniors, Roxana E. Lewis '36, for the juniors, and Marjorie L. Allen '37, for the sophomores. The French professors will also speak. Prof. Stephen A. Freeman will be master of ceremonies.

The officers of the French club during the past year have been Suzanne M. Treillet '35, president, Helen C. Aronson '36, vice-president, and Roxana E. Lewis '36, secretary-treasurer.

Women Meet Faculty in Baseball on Athletic Field as Part of Sports Day

In spite of rain, the women's sports day was held Saturday afternoon on the women's athletic field.

A baseball game between the women's team and the faculty was won by the faculty who claimed to have lost track of the score after the first fifty runs. Because of the wet field, the hockey game, archery tournament, and tennis finals were cancelled.

After supper, which was served at Hamlin hall, a banner was presented to the class displaying the most sportsmanship, ability, and interest in sports. This was awarded to the freshman class by Ruthanna Wilson '36, president of W. A. A., and was accepted for the class of 1938 by Catherine C. Whittier.

The affair was a project of the women's athletic association and was directed by Miss Wilson.

They blushed becomingly and moved a little apart for awhile . . . . . the Publisher, the Priest, and the Politician. And now they are together again, behind the bonus grab . . . . . the Publisher, the Priest, and the Politician.

Said the Publisher, shyly, in his many papers: "Why economize only in the case of the veterans? Why be penurious of them? They have rendered the most signal service that citizens can possibly render for their nation. And they are rendering the greatest service of citizenship today. They are the defence of the American faith, the protectors of American liberties, the maintainers of peace and order, the opponents of the enemy from without and from within."

"The Boys" will appreciate that. They will help the Publisher preserve America from rape by Reds.

Said the priest, shyly, over a nation-wide radio hook-up: "Go immediately to your telephone or to your telegraph office. Wire your senators and tell them that it is your demand as one of their constituents that they support the Patman plan and not the graft plan ordinarily called the Vinson plan."

The Publisher and the Priest were drawing together again. Wrote the Publisher's Brisbane, shyly, in his TO-DAY, for 30,000,000 of the "People Who Think": "An interesting political speech is that of the Reverend Father Charles E. He added: 'The members of the National Union are stronger than the President'."

Authors Are Given Four Fellowships

Publishers Choose Writers To Attend Conference at Bread Loaf this Summer

Recipients of four annual fellowships offered by the Bread Loaf writers' conference, sponsored by Middlebury College, have been announced.

The winning candidates are Shirley Barker of Durham N. H., author of "Dark Hills Under"; Isabel Wilder, New Haven, Conn., author of "Mother and Four" and "Heart Be Still"; Natalie Sokoloff, New York city, author of "So Brief the Years"; and Howard Fast, New York city, historical novelist and author of "Two Valleys" and "Strange Yesterday".

These winners were chosen from a list of forty-five candidates, nominated by twenty-six publishing houses and periodical editors through the country, by Theodore Morrison of Harvard, conference director. During the session held the last two weeks in August, the writers will study and confer with John Mason Brown, John Crowe Ransom, Bernard DeVoto, Gladys Hasty Carroll, and Julia Peterkin.

These fellowships are awarded annually to men and women who have been picked through a nomination system by publishers and editors. The purpose is to bring to the Bread Loaf conference young writers who have already gained a measure of success, but who seem likely to profit by a two weeks' association and study with a group of more advanced writers who gather annually at Bread Loaf during the last two weeks of August.

Middlebury Students See Annual Musical Festival

Middlebury College students taking the course in public school music attended the annual music festival, sponsored by the state of Vermont, which was recently held in Burlington.

Students made this trip under the direction of Mrs. Marion D. Seaver, instructor of music at the college, and director of music at the Middlebury and Brandon high schools. The purpose was to familiarize college students with the methods used in teaching music in the secondary schools.

The outstanding feature of the festival, aside from the regular orchestra and glee club contests for the various high schools, was the mass chorus of six hundred students, and the combined orchestra of two hundred instruments, who were trained by outstanding musical directors at the festival.

Kappa Delta Rho Is Winner of Contest

Prizes Also Awarded to Chi Psi and Alpha Sigma Phi By Old Gold Cigarette Co.

Kappa Delta Rho is the winner of the contest which the Old Gold Cigarette company has been sponsoring on the Middlebury campus during the past six weeks. Chi Psi placed second and Alpha Sigma Phi received third in this contest.

The prizes, which are awarded to the three fraternities having the largest number of empty Old Gold cigarette packages to their credit, consist of the following: first, a regulation ping pong table and complete equipment; second, a bridge set including table and chairs; and third, a modernistic table lamp. They will be distributed this week.

Final results of the contest are as follows:

Kappa Delta Rho	264
Chi Psi	52
Alpha Sigma Phi	39
Delta Kappa Epsilon	24
Beta Kappa	12
Sigma Phi Epsilon	12

So What?

by Heinz

SO YOUR'RE A CO-CAPTAIN, HEY? . . . . . Well, as the French would put it, "Si Quoi?" Which, when translated into the Queen's pig latin means just, "Osay Otway?" Sure, it isn't your fault though, so let's take a look at the situation.

Here's How It Happens

It's the end of the season, and time to think about electing a captain for next year. We glance over the crew, and find that there are two boys who have been playing varsity together for a couple of years. Whatta we gonna do now? Either of them MIGHT be captain, and both EXPECT to be. We can't hurt anyone's feelings 'cause they're both nice boys, and if we elect one, why the other might not play with us anymore. Sooooo,_____let's elect co-captains!

Here's The Result

Now gentlemen, there's the set-up, and what's the result? The primary result is that you have, as in one case, a team, forty percent of which are captains, and the secondary result is that the captaincy loses much of its significance. You know, originally a captaincy had a significance and a purpose. A GOOD captain was, and still is an important factor in a team's success. He has a purpose to fulfill and should be picked with that purpose fulfill and should be picked with that in mind. Whether or not it sounds high-schoolish, he is supposed to be an inspiration and an example for the rest of the team. However, the mere fact that he has been on the varsity for a couple of years and seems to know just a little about the game, doesn't insure that he can fulfill this purpose. The quality of leadership is something apart from the ability to click off thirty yards on every outside-tackle slant, or to be able to hook in a two-pointer over your shoulder three times out of four. The quality more than the ability is what makes a good CAPTAIN.

One Man For The Job

Now, no two men are equal in this quality. One man will show his supremacy in this respect by the spirit he has exhibited in the course of his years of competition. HE is the man for your job. This talk about hurting the other man's feelings and the fear that he "won't play if he can't be best", is just so much kid stuff. The place for prima donnas isn't on the athletic field anyway. And what, may I ask, is there to assure you that your co-captain or even captain of this sort will really play providing he is elected? Once again I mean p-l-a-y. With the possibility of a captaincy ahead of him, a fellow will hustle and keep on the ball every minute, but take away this incentive by bestowing the sought-after honor upon him, and a decided let-down occurs. You get a relapse into a "I-got-what-I-wanted-what's-there-to-fight-for-now" attitude, and then you know you've guessed wrong.

Acting Captains

There have been numerous attempts at solutions. Many coaches stand behind the idea of appointing an acting captain for every game, but this plan hasn't worked out too well. In football a captain of this sort has merely supplied the necessary third person to make official the pre-game toss-up for ends of the field, and has proved no inspiration. Even if a man does have the ability of leadership, it is more or less constrained within him when the condition exists where he is called upon to boss his last week's boss.

A Solution

The University of New Hampshire seems to have hit upon something. Here the captain is elected after the third game of the season, the coach giving each of the three possibilities a hand at it once, as well as picking the men on the squad eligible to vote. This plan also wet blankets the "you-vote-for-our-manager-we'll-vote - for-your-captain" phase of fraternity politics, and sounds good to me. But in plain King's English—so what?

SPORTS

Two Meets Ahead For Track Team

Blue and White to Compete In New England, State Conference Engagements

The Blue and White trackmen will close the current season with participation in the N. E. I. C. A. A. meet at Portland, Me., Friday and Saturday, and the Green Mountain conference tilt at Burlington the following Thursday.

Coach Brown believes that the Panther should take a few scattered places in the New England association engagement, but that the point total will be negligable. In the conference encounter he expects Middlebury to win after a stiff fight with Vermont. Mathewson and Hoxie who both scored points in the Easterns have sustained minor leg injuries which may hinder their speed and perhaps prevent them from racing at Portland. Coach Brown also wants to give many of his men a rest before the state meet and consequently only eight events will be entered.

Four In Running Events

In the running events Middlebury will have four entrants. Hoxie should take a first or second in the 100 if he recovers from his leg bruise, but in the 220 he seems to be in line for no more than a fourth with Giligan of Holy Cross beating out Funstan of New Hampshire university for first. Foster may place third in the 440 if he repeats his 50.8 seconds time, while Forbush, first place winner in last week's engagement, should be among the first four in the 880. MacFadyen may gain a spot in the mile distance, but Veysey of Colby again looks like a sure winner.

In the field events, the Panther has three entrants, with Cady standing an excellent chance of winning first in the broad jump. Lombardy may be able to take third or fourth in the discus, but one of the Rhode Island trio of "platter" men should easily win first spot. Hoffmann should be in line for a fourth in the pole vault if he can again go up to 11 feet 9 inches and if Mathewson's knee heals, he undoubtedly will capture a place in both hurdle events, although Good of Bowdoin appears to be a probable winner.

Twenty-Two Colleges Entered

Of the twenty-two colleges entered in this meet, Rhode Island state, University of Maine, Bowdoin, and Northeastern university seem to be the most logical possibilities for first place. Rhode Island will dominate the weight events, while Maine has several powerful runners. Bowdoin and Northeastern have well balanced outfits.

The Green Mountain conference meet promises to develop into a battle between Middlebury and the forces of the Green and Gold. Norwich's chances of winning have sunk to almost zero during the last week due to an injury to the arm of McGuire, expert weight man.

Delfausse Vermont Threat

Vermont's main threat is Delfausse, a fine dash man and a fairly good broad-jumper, javelin thrower, and shot putter, who scored 17 points during his team's recent dual meet with Colby. Syme, a hurdler, is also dangerous but Mathewson should be able to nose him out in both the 120 and 220 yard distances. Trudeau, the Lakesider's third outstanding performer, may capture thirds in both the hurdle events, and most likely a first in the high jump.

Taking the meet as a whole, Middlebury seems due to sweep most of the running events, with the Green and Gold capturing many seconds and and thirds and perhaps two firsts. The field activities will probably be divided equally among the contesting squads, with the Blue and White being noticeably weak in the shot put and hammer throw.

Panther Golf Quartet Will Meet St. Lawrence Today

The Middlebury golf four will meet St. Lawrence, a team of unknown quality, today on the local course. Saturday the Panther quartet lost to McGill, the most formidable opponent of the season, 5-1.

Neilson turned in the only victory for the Blue and White team when he defeated Calder one up on the eighteenth green. Pickens lost a close match to Bush, Canadian intercollegiate champion, one up on the nineteenth hole. Captain Leete succumbed to Brodie 2 and 1 and Johnson was defeated by Ferguson 4 and 3. Leete and Pickens lost the four ball match 2 and 1, while Neilson and Johnson were squeezed out one up on the nineteenth hole.

This event was the first international golf match in the history of McGill university sports, but it is hoped that it will become an annual event in the Canadian institution's athletic program.

The St. Lawrence encounter today will be the last of the current season for the Blue and White.

Middlebury Trackmen Show Strength by Places In Running Events

Competing against ten other colleges in the E. I. C. A. A. meet at Worcester, Mass., Saturday, the Middlebury trackmen showed expected power to gain an easy second place, and trail only the team from Rhode Island state college.

Rhode Island in taking the meet amassed a total of 56 1-3 points, with the Panther scoring in more track events than any other entrant, and finishing with an even 30 points. The other contenders were: Tufts, with 17 2-3; Colby, with 14; Worcester tech, with 13 2-3; Vermont, with 12 1-2; Mass. state, with 7 1-2; Norwich, with 5; Boston university, with 4 1-3; Conn. state, with 3; and Trinity with no points.

By far the most outstanding individual performance of the Blue and White squad was turned in by Cady when he hurtled a distance of 22 feet, 10 inches to break the Eastern Intercollegiate broad jump record and the collegiate broad jump record and win in easy manner. Captain Mathewwon a first place in the 120 yard high hurdles and placed a close second in the lows.

In the dashes Hoxie of the Panther also sustained a pulled leg muscle, which kept him out of the 220, but he succeeded in taking a second place in the 100 yard event, after equalling the meet record of 10 seconds in the trials. Foster accounted for another dash point when he placed fourth in the 440.

In the half mile, Hill of Middlebury took an early lead but weakened to give place to his teammate Forbush, who ran a heady race to hold the lead and finish in first spot. The mile run saw Middlebury's MacFadyen meet his first defeat of the season when Veysey, Colby star put on a finish drive that won for him by about 45 yards, with the Panther runner taking the second place.

Middlebury's decided weakness in the field events once again took its toll with Hoffmann's second in the pole vault and Lombardy's third in the discus throw the only Blue and White points in this department. Whitney succeeded in breaking the college record in the hammer throw when he hurled the iron 135 feet, 5 1-2 inches, but the achievement was not sufficient to earn him a place in the meet.

Baseball Team To Play Three Conference Contests In Opposing Vermont, St. Michael's and Norwich

Three contests will determine the final degree of achievement of Middlebury's baseball team when the Panther nine plays one game at home and twice ventures abroad against Green Mountain competition Thursday the Blue and White will engage Vermont at Burlington, Saturday St. Michael's will be met here, and on the following Thursday the season will close against Norwich at Northfield.

Vermont Away Thursday

By far the most important clash is Thursday's game with the green and Gold team which was postponed Saturday because of rain. Stimulated by the memory of one decisive trouncing this year at the hands of the Lakesiders, Middlebury will be out to come through in victorious style on the Burlington field. A win over Vermont will again elevate the Panther into a position as an important contender for the conference championship, while victory for the Green and Gold spells almost certain conference supremacy for that club. U. V. M. has hammered both Norwich and Middlebury by overwhelming scores in conference competition, and will face the Blue and White with a clean slate and the desire to overcome the last remaining obstacle in the title race. B. Guild will once more be in readiness to attempt the taming of the Catamount batters who were so unruly under Barker in the previous encounter.

Meet Mikemen Here

If the crucial test against Vermont can be successfully passed, the Panther diamond squad should breathe more easily when they take the field against an already defeated St. Michael's nine for their last home appearance Saturday. Thursday's batting holiday at the expense of the St. Michael's twirlers should inspire the Middmen to do likewise for the home fans against the Winooski club. Coach Petras' men are fresh from a 5-4 victory over Connecticut state, however, and will not submit without a grim struggle. A team largely made up of veterans who have taken beating after beating during the past few years at the hands of Middlebury will face their last chance to retaliate to some extent before they graduate. St. Michael's has won one game out of two against Norwich in the conference race, losing its only other tilt to the Panther.

Last Game With Norwich

A week from tomorrow the Middlebury squad will oppose Norwich at Northfield for the second meeting between the two teams this season. The Horsemen at present are in a rather disorganized condition and stand at the bottom of the conference records. Unless the tables are radically changed in the next week's encounters the Panther nine should experience little difficulty in taking its second game from the Cadets.

PANTHER NINE DEFEATS ST. MICHAEL'S IN SECOND CONFERENCE VICTORY, 15-10

The Panther nine defeated St. Michael's 15-10 in a conference contest at Winooski Thursday. The encounter with Vermont, to be played on Centennial field, was postponed because of Saturday's rain.

An amusing barrage of hits, runs and errors characterized the victory over the Mikemen. The Blue and White collected 15 hits from Meade and Lessard, 6 of which were compiled by Zawistoski, while Lins allowed the Purple 11 bingles.

Five runs in the early innings plus six points registered in the fifth and two more in the sixth, gave the Panthers a 13-1 lead over the opposition. Zawistoski brought in several Middmen and crossed the plate a half-dozen times himself with one triple, two doubles, and three singles. When the Purple came to bat in the sixth, however, they knocked out enough hits to accompany Middlebury's errors and bring in four runs, with two more following in the seventh. Errors by Hoehn and Guild in the last frame enabled two Mikemen to romp home, and Lessard to gain second. A single by his teammate, McNamara, brought Lessard in for the tenth Purple score.

Blue and White Netmen Defeat Union Team 5-4

The Blue and White netmen climaxed the 1935 season with a hard-played 5-4 victory over Union college, running up their sixth consecutive victory after a demonstration of the best tennis they have played this spring. Saturday they will meet the University of Vermont at Burlington in the final match of the season.

Captain LaForce, experiencing an off-day, lost his singles to Fox of the New Yorkers in straight sets as did Buskey to his opponent, while Holmes went down to defeat after taking one out of the three. The Middlebury wins were scored by Rudd who defeated Stroebel, Brown who downed Salad, and Tierney who won over Moffett.

In the doubles LaForce and Buskey dropped their first encounter of the season by 6-3 and 6-2, but Brown and Tierney came through with a good match in straight sets, 6-4, 6-1. The outcome of the day's efforts then depended on the results of the final match between Rudd and Holmes for the Panther and Fox and McGee of the Garnet. Middlebury won the first set, but dropped the second to further heighthen the interest. The Blue and White netmen however rose to the occasion and swamped their opponents in the final set, 6-1.

Intramural Softball Final Won by Kappa Delta Rho

Kappa Delta Rho won the intramural softball championship Wednesday when they defeated Delta Kappa Epsilon by a score of 15-3.

Embler worked on the mound for the victors, while Boehm opened the twirling for DKE. A barrage of KDR hits, however, and numerous walks necessitated the substitution of Martin into the pitching assignment for DKE.

Third honors in the tournament were claimed by ASP who won over DU, 15-8. In preliminary contests, KDR downed DU by a count of 7-3, and DKE came out ahead in a game with ASP by 14-1.
